And the Texans respond...

Flighties: Of course I've been west of the Rio Grande! Why, I remember one night in New Orleans I got a date with this cute little waitress in an Oriental restaurant. I was all set to take her out to a fancy show and, well,....whatever.....when it suddenly hit me that she was drunk! I mean really, now, all she kept saying over and over was her name...and she kept slurring that! Anyway, Suzie (she kept saying "Sushi"! ) finally got me upset when I tried to take her home - and I mean upset. The instant that I put my hand on her she upset me right onto the floor!

UTA to Hidalgo: I'm not sure how that relates to being west of the Rio Grande, but...

N to U: Well, yes! Actually I did graduate from Annapolis way back in '70 and served some time on the CVS Kearsage out of your sandy shores--and one of the John Baker's in the phone book is my uncle (ex-Navy).

UTA to University: So maybe he is a jarhead?

N to U: Please let me explain. A jarhead wears green uniforms with bright red stripes down the side! Us good guys always wear white, spend freely, and are out for a good time--no wonder all the girls love us!

N to UTA: Strange game, no one has lied to me yet...perhaps they'll start writing soon.

UTA to N: Hmm, several people have said that. Somebody take the initiative here, okay?
